Our History, Your Love Story

William Rotch, Jr. was one of New Bedford's most influential townspeople and entrepreneurs. From the 1770s until the demise of the industry, his family was at the forefront of whaling in New Bedford and Nantucket. In 1834, those fortunes built the house that now sits at 396 County Street. Subsequent residents – the Jones and Duff families – renovated the Greek Revival house to suit their tastes, but the exterior remains largely the same today as it was in 1834. Gardens are set to the south side of the one-acre plot to allow for quality southern exposure.

The current landscape resembles that of the the Jones residency (1851-1935) most closely, but elements of all three residencies remain. A 19th century wooden lattice pergola anchors the main axis of the surrounding gardens which include a formal boxwood rose parterre garden, a boxwood specimen garden, and a woodland shade garden. There are also apple and pear trees, hydrangea, dogwoods and heritage trees on the site.

The museum stewards this historic site for the benefit of the public. Today, the ambiance of the historic gardens provides a unique setting for summer concerts and theater, educational programs, garden tours, family activities, and special events.

Rental Policies & Client Information

We look forward to hosting your event and assisting you with what you need to plan it. We recognize that a successful event relies on good communication. To that end, we provide this information, and encourage clients to contact us with any and all questions and plans for their events. Thank you.

Description of RJD Venue, Garden & Mansion

The outdoor venue is an acre, with several hundred feet of open lawn, and ornamental gardens. The historic pergola serves as a unique backdrop for ceremonies. The slate patio is 1600 square feet and is tented from May through October.

The indoor venue is the 1834 mansion, with original Mahogany and Walnut woodwork, New Bedford Pairpoint glass chandeliers, original artwork and period furniture. In December, the first floor is decorated with Christmas trees and festive garlands.

What's in Bloom?

Approximate flowering times of the garden are below:

May: Forsythia

June: Dogwood

July through August: Hydrangea

Jun through September: Roses

Available Through the RJD Venue:

Testimonials

"We want to thank the RJD events staff from the bottom of our hearts for executing such a flawless day for us. We decided to hold both our ceremony and reception in your beautiful gardens and it did not disappoint. The RJD Museum will always hold a place in our hearts as the most perfect wedding venue. The day would not been what it was without your event staff's assistance."

-Kelsey & Larry
June 25th, 2022

"The rose garden, the tent that was already set-up, the options to have guests see the house, and the location were all incredible! Claudio was super helpful day of, and the pictures from our event are wonderful. Most of our guests were from out-of-state, and were blown away by the venue! A great introduction to New Bedford."

-Alex & Edward
June 2022, Rehearsal Dinner

"We had our wedding ceremony in the garden on July 16th and it was the most beautiful day! The grounds are absolutely stunning and we are so happy with how everything went. The functions coordinator made this day so very special for us. Them and the RJD staff organized everything for our ceremony and made it look so effortless. We didn't have to worry about anything. We are so grateful for them and everything they did for us on our wedding day."

-Tracey & Joey
July 16th, 2022

"Being able to have everything on site such as the tent, tables and chairs made the process less stressful. The grounds are lovely and great to be able to tour the museum. The RJD Staff were great to work with very helpful during the whole process."

-Zenaide
August 2022, Baby Shower

"We could not be happier with our experience. The venue was beautiful, the gardens were still going despite it being November, and the RJD events staff was extremely helpful and accommodating."
